

!!! Greetings from Animalario.tv !!!

www.animalario.tv (press the Japanese anus and come in)

A place where animals have ceased being animals! A site dedicated to the culture of recycling and appropriationism!

The website animalario.tv is an experimental melting-pot of audiovisual works related to artistic appropriation, mockumentaries, cinema essays, cannibal and pirate art...a space of reflection and fun that promotes cultural exchange, seeks to create a new community of like-minded people, and to offer an exciting chance for collaboration with other artists, theorists, musicians, and anyone interested in the subject. Animalario.tv will screen experimental visions and projects that reinterpret the creative subject in the context of the internet.

www.animalario.tv, confront the popular fact in Spanish cuisine that "everything can be used from the pig"- from the snout to the tail, together with the modus operandi of numerous creative people working with inter-textuality, appropriation, re-elaboration and the free circulation of information on the internet. This subject is currently culturally explosive - Creative Commons, internet public archives, etc.

Do you feel a fatal attraction for ham and "cultural cybermortadellas"?

If so, then take part in the competition "Y un jamón". Send to us at:

yunjamon@animalario.tv your links (youtube, dailymotion ...) or your net.art works and videos related to the theme of: "Creative Banditry, Culture of cut ups, Remix, Contradiction, Freshness, Illegal Art, Popular Art..." It's your interpretation and manipulations of pre-existing ideas and material that we want to see, or even your own creations and unusual visions! (or if you prefer via snail-mail, let us know!).

The deadline is January 17th 2009, St. Anton's day. The most nutritious will win a "Spanish ham".

Furthermore, we offer our web page as a showcase for your proposals and projects through "PorcoArchive", a platform of collaborative resources and appropriationism which is always on the move. We have room for your audiovisual treasures, cyber-piracy, those suggestive moments that move you..."PorcoArchive" is divided into sections to which you can mail us:

"Video": video@animalario.tv
"Audio": audio@animalario.tv
"Imagen": imagen@animalario.tv
"Biblioteca": biblioteca@animalario.tv
"Links": links@animalario.tv

We look forward to seeing your treasures: websites, fakes, urban legends, science fiction, cryptozoology, hoaxes. All those signs of the collective unconscious that travel fast mouth to mouth, incite debate and creativity and cheer up our lives.
